Description Sing a Song of Everything is an interactive, lively and stimulating workshop for younger school children. Piccolo takes the children on a musical adventure, encompassing Maths, English, Science, PE, French, Playground fun/PHSCE, Rhyme, Rhythm and stories - they have a song for every learning situation, be it number bonds, the lifecycle of the frog, or traditional fairy tales! Music and singing make the learning fun and accessible for all ability levels. The school will receive a CD and teaching notes containing all the songs and suggested activities used by Piccolo, so that teachers can continue to utilise the material in subsequent lessons. Any interested adults, including parents, are invited to take part in these workshops to learn the games and songs. Be prepared to hop, jump, skip, clap and play.

Piccolomusic

Anna Scantlebury and Abi Cotton who run Piccolo, are specialist providers of singing workshops for young children, with over 7 years experience of singing in the North East. Conscious of the influence that music and singing games can have on children's social/emotional development, their approach is to make songs great fun and very visual as well as physical, so that children cannot resist joining in, whatever their learning strengths. All session leaders are experienced with working with young children and are CRB checked. Inset training also available by arrangement.
